Recent achievements of B'nai B'rith Europe

Amongst other daily activities, B'nai B'rith Europe has, in its short history, realised a number of important accomplishments:

- A notable travelling exhibition was organised on Jewish Resistance during World War II, thus honouring those heroes, Jews and non-Jews, who fought to save so many lives during the Nazi regime throughout Europe. The exhibition was inaugurated in Brussels on 20th November 2001 where it was displayed for three months before opening in Vienna and Berlin in 2002.

- The creation of B'nai B'rith Europe Foreign Affairs network (FAN).
- The European Day of Jewish Culture: B'nai B'rith was instrumental in planning, initiating, and developing this historic event throughout Europe which has collectively been celebrating the rich European Jewish cultural heritage. Since 2004 the European Route of Jewish Heritage is supported by the European Institute of Cultural Routes and the Council of Europe. On 5th December 2005 during an official ceremony in Strasbourg it has received the diploma “Major Cultural Route of the Council of Europe”.
- B'nai B'rith Book Fair: For many years, B'nai B'rith Europe has held an International Book Fair in Paris with books written by Jewish writers, in the presence of the authors and followed by round table debates on subjects such as, in 2008, “Do Jews and Black People remain natural allies?”. Major personalities from the Jewish and non-Jewish media and the political world participate in these debates.
- The Makor Project also known as "Bridges of Tolerance", a B'nai B'rith Europe initiative for a multi-national Jewish cultural project in Central & Eastern Europe. We aim to create an educational, cultural platform through which we would present the Jewish contribution to the various aspects of cultural life of each participating country.
